DAVID AND ANNA MATSON.

By Mrs. Abigail Scott Duniway,

WITH BEAUTIFUL ILLUSTRATIONS, AND ELEGANTLY BOUND

Editor "New Northwest," Portland, Oregon,

Sewing Machines!

A new eptc, from a vigorous and skillful pen, on a subject which occupies a large place in the social discussions of the day. The subject is taken from Mr. Whittler's short narrative of "Da vid Matson," with which the reader is probably familiar. David Matson, a Merrimae sallor was captured by the Algerines (during one of his voyages) and sold into slavery. After many years he obtained release and was on his way to the home of his boyhood, when he fell in with his old employer, who had a marrendered all claim as husband and father to the way who had stunned by his trouble, he surrendered all claim as husband and father to the man who had stepped into his place, and departed. Mrs. Duniway has jound a theme in this story with which her heart beats in warmest sympathy, and her lines flow on in the smooth cadence in dicative of the fullest accord. She pictures the gentle, tender, trustful Anna and the wily, cov ctous Pelatiah in vivid colors; and how years of poverty and longing, and the cries of the hun gry boys, compelled poor Anna to yield to Pelatiah's importunity,

"Rise, rejoice, My poor, unmated dove," said he, "And look benceforth for love to me," A little further on he says:

"Become my wife and you shall be Made happy through prosperity," While, if she persists in declining his advances, wolf-like, he threatens to abandon her to star-vation and cold. And this Pelatiah was a "deacon,"

"In exhorizations deep and loud."

The wanderings of David, his captivity, release, hapless interview with Pelatiah, discovery of Anna's second wifehood, and his sad going back to Algeria, are all told so pathetically that our feelings are deeply enlisted. No one, with any true sentiment, can read the poem without being thoroughly stirred. The illustrations are in admirable keeping with the passages they are designed to portray, and a fine sugraving of the author is a fitting frontispiece. The subject spirit, fire and passion of the poem should give it an extensive reading, aside from the interest which the literary reputation of the author must awaken in it. As a specimen of book-making

With the New Year come new styles and inventions. Prominent among these ranks our new Stein Wending Watch, named "Old siyls." Although heretofore we have always handled tree next watch of each kind that it was possible to get, yet it has been impossible to get a low prized watch, with the stem-winding attachment, that could be relied upon for time, and have a finished appearence. This seems to have been accomplished by the inventor of "Old 1858." We need only refer you to the cut given in consection with this, which is an exact imination of it, and say that it is perfect in every way. The works are covered with a hunting case. The front of face is a plane glass cap or crystal 16 of an inch thick, set to a heavy run one-half an inch in worth, making it almost impossible to injure the watch.

It is fitted expectably for Raibroad, farm and shop uses, where dust and dirt are liable to get in on opening. As the cases fit very classly, and being a stem-winder and open dial, it need never be opened. If you need a watch, try this. It is entirely new and nevel. You can reity on it for time. You will be the only one in your neighborhood having such a watch. It looks exactly like gold and will save its
